

Broad River Waterfowl Management Area is a category 1 area and hunts are held one day per week during duck season. The main duck species harvested are Ring Neck, Wood Duck, Mallard and Green-Winged Teal. A wide variety of other duck species are present.

Other recreational activities include bird watching, fishing, archery deer hunting and small game hunting. The area is open to public access from February 2 thru October 31. The small size of the area requires closing public access during most of the winter because disturbing the migrating waterfowl causes them to abandon the site.

The area has many wildlife species associated with wetlands and rivers. Several types of wading birds visit the area year round. Mammals include deer, bobcat, fox, coyote, muskrat, rabbit, raccoon and others. Various hawk species reside on the WMA or migrate through. An active bald eagle nest is nearby and the eagles are regular visitors to the area.
